TO IDENTIFY CHARLES WILSON. Policemen Preparing to Take Another Trip to the Boone County.

The trial of Charles Wilson on the charge of murdering a police officer in cold blood will begin within a week or two in Syracuse, N. Y., and will give Officer Leuch and Sheriff Hazen of this city and Officers Haze and Ormsby of Omaha a chance to take a trip east. The trial of "Dink" Wilson for murder has been detailed in The Bee within the last few days. It is noted that his brother is now to go on trial for the same charge of even greater interest here, from the fact that Charles has some thing of a record in Council Bluffs.

Just after it will be remembered, that Officers Leuch and Al Wells, who has since left the force, discovered a couple of men trying to effect an entrance to the Boston store by means of the back window. A hot fight ensued, during which several shots were fired on both sides with intent to kill, both after a hand-to-hand combat, in which both the officers narrowly escaped death at the hands of the desperadoes, the latter were overpowered and taken to the city jail.

After a long confinement they succeeded in giving bail, but promptly jumped on being released. One of the men was Charles Wilson. Neither of them were heard from for some time, but they were finally secured of them out in California. Before they could be arrested they again disappeared and next turned up in New York, where they did the deed which probably eventually result in their both being struck by lightning.

Officer Leuch, of all the four officers who will leave for Omaha for the scene of the trial, probably looks forward to renewing his acquaintances with the man whom he first met while trying circumstances, with the most inward satisfaction. He being summoned to New York along with the other three officials is for the purpose of identifying the prisoner. Wilson is known all over the country as a desperate character, and there is but little doubt as to the final outcome of the present case.

NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Pottawattamie County Democratic Association Stirring Things Up Considerably.

OPponents of REED UNDER THE BAN. When "Knifing" is Indulged In Again by Members of the Organization Trouble Will Follow—Nicholson May Be Restored.

The Pottawattamie Democratic association held a special meeting last evening. It had been quietly rumored that something might be expected to drop when this meeting was held, and the people who in the last campaign opposed Council Bluffs in his candidacy for the county treasurership were expected to be underneath when it dropped. Considerable interest was consequently felt in the meeting, and the interest was not confined to the members of the club. The hall was well filled with members.

The matter in hand was brought up by some of those present in the shape of a resolution to expel from the club all the members who had taken any active part in the campaign against Reed. The question of expulsion was the subject of a long discussion, the upshot of which was that such a move would be in violation of the provisions of the constitution of the club. It was not allowed to drop there, however, and the club will see to it that when the operation of "knifing" candidates is resorted to in the future, no constitutional provision shall stand in the way of disposing of such unwholesome members. A committee was appointed to draft an amendment to the constitution which shall provide that any members who shall openly oppose any democratic candidates for office shall be liable to expulsion.

To Restore Nicholson. The club then proceeded to tear open the old score that has incensed about the office of the fire chief, Nicholson. It will be remembered, was suspended from office on the ground of two charges that were preferred against him—namely, that he had been conspiring, together with certain other members of the department, to remove the fire chief, and that he had been guilty of a gross misdemeanor in the shape of seeing that the fire business was lively, in order to give certain outsiders a chance to get a job, and that he had been guilty of a gross misdemeanor in the shape of getting drunk and raising Cain generally. These charges were drawn up against him in due form and the council was called upon to take action thereon. With a view to removing him from office in case the charges should prove to have been well founded, at Nicholson's request, the investigation was postponed until after the grand jury had disposed of the case, in order that his chances with the council might not be prejudiced.

Since the grand jury failed to indict him, move has been quietly on foot to have him restored to his office. A committee was appointed last night to draft a petition which will be presented to the council asking that Nicholson be restored to the position of fire chief. It has been understood that three copies of the petition will be presented to the council unless Nicholson or his friends insisted on his reinstatement.

This request from the democratic association members, will render it necessary for the investigation to be reopened. The petition will doubtless be presented to the council at its meeting next Monday night, and some action will be taken to prevent the taking of testimony. The friends of Nicholson are banking on the people of the city having so far forgotten the reports which were made from the investigation of the river with reference to Nicholson's actions.

Wants Pay for Painting. James D. Hall, a man who has been employed in painting the new bridge at East Omaha, commenced attachment proceedings in Justice Fox's court against the Phoenix Bridge company to collect $57, the amount of wages he claimed to be owing to him. The Phoenix people have completed their operations at the bridge and yesterday commenced to pack up their traps preparatory for a departure to Louisville, Ky., where they now have a job to do. A car was standing on the tracks when the officer arrived on the scene armed with a warrant and a taken charge for his benefit.

Some of the members of the gang of men employed by the company were also about to be taken into custody when they were given the wind of the fact and commenced proceedings in some of the justice courts to garnish the company. The foreman of the gang in some way got wind of what was coming and walked over to that part of the bridge, which is, beyond doubt, in the state of Nebraska, and sat down calmly to wait for the sheriff. The 600-mile bore down on the latter arrived he was informed that he was out of his jurisdiction and had to leave, while the foreman sat with his thumb against his nose in a suggestive fashion.

Which is the More Destructive, Fire or Water? To The Bee: Will you kindly answer in your columns this question, "Which is the most destructive, fire or water?"

This puzzling question has been revived in the last few weeks, and is being universally propounded to the newspapers all over the country. It has been seen in the other papers in the city, and the answers proving unsatisfactory, The Bee reporter has sought to reinforce his wisdom by submitting the query to you.

Prof. Sawyer—I refuse to answer such an ungrammatical question. Inquirer should have said "more," not "most." Neither is "most" destructive.

Sam Ford—Which is the most destructive, fire or water, eh? I don't know. I never tried water. Can't you see any sense in getting bothered with water when he can get my 10-year-old whisky and my famous Hammond's port wine. A man who has tried it doesn't bother with water. It's a fact. He won't take anything on the side, the inside I mean, if he wants to keep well, but the old O. F. C. Taylor 14-year-old whisky. It's the best medicine on earth for the grip and colds.

Ex-Chief Nicholson—Fire is the most destructive. See how little blazes knock us out.

L. C. Brackett—I don't know, but I've got lots of books that will give you all the information you need. And, by the way, your correspondent, please, stop asking. Why don't he get some of the nobby stationery in that showcase? Then he would be strictly in the swim. Perhaps he would decline him in favor of water.

Clint S. Byers—Water, of course; that is for such purposes as come of the earth earthy. Fire may affect the soil, but the soil next water, but the soil is not affected by water. I insure soles against being affected by water. Just look at these shoes. No damn feet, no deadly colds if a man wears those kinds of shoes. Then here are rubbers and overshoes—proof against water, frozen or thawed. Good rubbers this year are going to be jewels, and here are my jewels.

J. Q. Anderson of the Council Bluffs Insurance Company—Fire is the most destructive of two. It is the only one that awakes his property worrying about it. If he has his property protected by a policy in the Council Bluffs insurance company, he is safe.

J. C. Bixby—Well, I believe in cooking fire and water together and making them both do good service in the way of steam heating and hot water heating. There's a new hot water gas heater, portable as a gas stove or lamp, and the cheapest, most economical and satisfactory device I ever saw. It will heat a room, and it will heat a view to removing him from office in case the charges should prove to have been well founded. At Nicholson's request, the investigation was postponed until after the grand jury had disposed of the case, in order that his chances with the council might not be prejudiced.
